

TwinklHive invests in Examscreen to transform how schools deliver assessments

TwinklHive is a business accelerator based in Sheffield that provides space, investment and support to accelerate the growth of EdTech companies. TwinklHive recently invested in Examscreen, the leading digital display tool for exam rooms.

Founded in 2018 by John Gaston, Examscreen is an award-winning application that modernised the way assessment information was displayed in exam halls and classrooms. Examscreen provides a distraction-free screen which clearly displays all the information students require to sit their examinations comfortably. Examscreen offers consistency for educators throughout the country, whilst transforming the way assessments are run for thousands of students.

John Gaston, an exams officer and founder of Examscreen said: "Examscreen proved extremely popular with schools from the outset and has achieved fantastic growth across the country and internationally over the last few years. Examscreen provides a solution to a problem that many schools face. We have built something unique and necessary that is starting to gain serious momentum, so we're really excited."

Examscreen and TwinklHive understand the importance of making the assessment process fair and consistent for young people. With these shared beliefs, Examscreen's goal is to use the investment from TwinklHive to broaden their mission by expanding their partnerships to further schools both in the UK and globally. This expansion will allow Examscreen to support more students and exam professionals as they navigate their assessments.

David Angrave, Chief Operating Officer at Twinkl and Investment Director of TwinklHive, said "We are excited to have invested in Examscreen as they share our passion for educating and supporting young people. Examscreen have changed how information is displayed to young people, meaning it is clearer, more consistent and distraction-free. I look forward to supporting Examscreen as they expand into more schools throughout the UK."
