

Twinkl Releases "No Print" Teaching Materials

Twinkl Educational Publishing are delighted to announce the launch of a brand new set of teaching materials for the 4 to 11 age range - Twinkl Go. Twinkl Go provides new methods of teaching and learning using a computer or mobile device, without the need for printing.

Twinkl Go offers three types of exciting learning opportunities:

1. Go Engage allows children to take ownership of their own learning experiences through interactive features and tools, including buttons, audio, video, animation and hyperlinks to access further information about a chosen topic or theme.
2. Go Respond gives children the opportunity to interact with learning in a whole new way, using editable fields that allow children to respond digitally, including check boxes, hyperlinks and editable text boxes.
3. Go Venture takes children on a journey outside of traditional teaching spaces, be it physically or visually and includes QR code technology that reveals information so children can learn as they go.

Emma Edwards, teacher and blogger, said: "I can see the huge potential of Twinkl Go within a classroom and home environment. It is a great way of using technology across the curriculum and it immediately engages children's interest."

Heather McAvan, Twinkl's Chief Customer Understanding Officer, said: "We've heard from teachers and head teachers in recent years about the high cost of printing - so we decided to act on that information, especially in light of recent budget cuts. Twinkl Go allows children to take control of their own learning outside of traditional classroom spaces."

More information can be found in the Twinkl Go User Guide and also on Twinkl Go
