

Twinkl triumphs at charity awards night

The online educational publisher Twinkl has been announced as the Standout Small Business of the Year at the Variety Yorkshire Business Awards.

The awards, organised by the children's charity Variety, recognise unique companies in the region that are having a high impact in their field. Twinkl received its award for the difference it has made in the education sector and the huge growth it has seen since it began operating in 2010.

The company provides innovative educational resources used by schools and educators across the world. It was first founded by husband and wife Jonathan and Susie Seaton in Sheffield. It began as an 'after-work' business but quickly grew as teachers embraced Twinkl's high-quality online learning materials. The company now has over 480 team members, operates in over 179 countries and has over half a million resources available on its website.

"We are very honoured and humbled to be part of this year's Variety Yorkshire Business Awards," said Jonathan Seaton, CEO and Founder of Twinkl.

"It is fantastic to come together at these awards and celebrate the vibrancy and success of businesses in Yorkshire and even more fantastic to support Variety, which improves the lives of children and young people throughout the UK.

"The award is testament to all of Twinkl's wonderful team members, who are based at our head office in Sheffield and now across the world too."

Last week Twinkl also received three awards at the Sheffield Business Awards for Outstanding Business of the Year, Employer of the Year and Excellence in International Trade.
